New Delhi, the 31st January 1968

G.S.R. 261.—The following draft of certain rules which the Central Government proposes to make in exercise of powers conferred by clauses (g), (h), (i), and (j) of sub-section (2) of section 236, read with section 458, of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958 (44 of 1958) and in supersession of the Indian Merchant Shipping (Closing of Openings in Hulls and in Water-tight Bulkheads) Rules, 1958 is hereby published, as required by sub-section (1) of the said section 236 for the information of all persons likely to be affected thereby and notice is hereby given that the said draft will be taken into consideration on or after the 10th day of March 1968.

Any objection or suggestion which may be received from any person with respect to the said draft before the date so specified will be taken into consideration by the Central Government

Draft Rules

1. Short title, commencement and application.—(1) These rules may be called the Merchant Shipping (Closing of Openings in Hulls and in water-tight Bulkheads) Rules.

(2) They shall come into force immediately.

(3) They shall apply to all passenger ships registered in India.

2. Definitions.—(1) In these rules, unless the context otherwise requires—

(a) 'Act' means the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958, (44 of 1958);

(b) "breadth of the ship" means the greatest moulded breadth at or below the ship's deepest sub-division load water line;

(c) "margin line" means a line drawn at least 76 millimetres below the upper surface of the bulkhead deck at the side of a ship and assumed for the purposes of determining the floodable length of the ship;

(2) For the purposes of these rules a ship shall be deemed to proceed to sea, when it leaves a mooring or anchorage at a port or place for that purpose and it shall be deemed to be at sea until it has been secured at a mooring or anchorage at a port or place.

3. Closing of Contrivances.—(1) In every ship, the contrivances referred to in sub-rule (2) shall, immediately before the ship proceeds to sea, be securely closed and shall be kept so closed while the ship is at sea.

(2) The contrivances referred to in sub-rule (1) are—

(a) water-tight doors below the margin line which are fitted in bulkheads required by the Merchant Shipping (Passenger Ship Construction and Survey) Rules, 1967 to be water-tight and which divide cargo between deck spaces;

(b) all side scuttles which can be opened and which are situated in any between decks and below the margin line, if any such side scuttles have their sills below a line drawn parallel to the bulkhead deck at the side of the ship and having its lowest point 1.37 metres, in addition to 2½ per cent of the breadth of the ship, above the water when the ship is first afloat in sea water after proceeding to sea;

Provided that in fair weather seasons in tropical zones within the meaning of the International Load Line Convention, 1966 (including seasonal tropical zones in appropriate seasons) the requirements of this clause shall have effect as if the figures and word 1.07 metres were substituted for the figures and word 1.37 metres:

Provided further that in the application of this requirement an appropriate allowance for fresh water may be made when applicable under the provisions of the International Load Line Convention, 1966.

(c) side scuttles below the margin line which shall not be accessible while the ship is at sea; together with their dead lights;

(d) side scuttles below the margin line situated in spaces appropriated alternatively for the carriage of cargo or passengers, together with their dead lights, when the space in which they are situated is used for the carriage of cargo;

(e) gangway, cargo ports, and coaling ports below the margin line.

(3) For the purposes of this rule—

(a) a contrivance shall be deemed to be below the margin line if the sill of such contrivance is below that line; and

(b) a side scuttle shall be deemed to be closed when it is locked.

4. Closing of doors.—In every ship, every water-tight door, not being a door referred to in clause (a) of sub-rule (2) of rule 3 shall be kept closed while the ship is at sea except when it is required to be opened for the working of the ship and when so opened it shall be kept free of obstruction which might prevent its rapid closure.

5. Portable Plates.—In every ship, every portable plate which closes any opening in any portion of the internal structure of the ship, which is required by the Merchant Shipping (Passenger Ship Constructions and Survey) Rules, 1967 to be water-tight, being an opening which is wholly or partly below the margin line, shall be in its place when the ship proceeds to sea and shall be so kept in its place all the time while the ship is at sea, except in the case of urgent necessity. In replacing any such plate all necessary precautions shall be taken to ensure that the joints are water-tight.

6. Closing of contrivances not in use.—In every ship, the cover and valve of any ash-shoot, rubbish-shoot or other similar contrivance having its inboard opening below the margin line shall be kept securely closed when the device is not in use.

7. Drills.—(1) In every ship, all water-tight doors and other contrivances referred to in rules 3, 4 and 6 shall be opened and closed for purposes of drill—

(a) at intervals of not more than seven days; and

(b) immediately before the ship proceeds to sea, if the ship is intended to remain at sea for a period of more than seven days.

Provided that the provisions of this sub-rule shall not be construed to authorise the opening, while the ship is at sea, of any water-tight door or other contrivance which is otherwise required to be kept closed by these rules.

(2) In every ship, all water-tight doors fitted in transverse bulkheads required by the Merchant Shipping (Passenger Ship Construction and Survey) Rules, 1967 to be watertight, not being doors required by these rules to be kept closed while the ship is at sea, shall be opened and closed for the purposes of drill once in every twenty-four hours when the ship is at sea, if such doors are both—

(a) hinged or operated by power; and

(b) required to be opened for the working of the ship at any time while the ship is at sea;

Provided that the provisions of this sub-rule shall not require any bunker door to be opened and closed during the voyage until it has been opened for the working of the ship during that voyage.

8. Inspection.—In every ship—

(a) all watertight doors,

(b) all mechanisms, indicators and warning devices connected with such doors,

(c) all valves the closing of which is necessary to make watertight any compartment below the margin line, and

(d) all valves the operation of which is necessary for the efficient operation of damage control cross connections, shall be inspected at intervals of not more than seven days by a person appointed for that purpose by the master of the ship.

9. In every ship, entries shall be made in the official log book recording the following, namely;

- (a) the times of the last closing, before the ship proceeds to sea, of the watertight doors and other contrivance referred to in rule 3 and the next subsequent opening of such doors and contrivances;
- (b) the times of the closing and opening, while the ship is at sea, of any watertight door which is fitted between bunkers in the between decks below the bulkhead deck;
- (c) whether the portable plates referred to in rule 5 are in place when the ship proceeds to sea and the times, if any, of the removal and replacement of such plates when the ship is at sea; and
- (d) the occasions on which the drills are practiced and the inspections are made in compliance with the foregoing provisions of these rules and whether the contrivances to which such drills and inspections relate are in good working order.

10. Penalties.—Any person who commits any breach of any of these rules shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees and if the breach is a continuing one, with a further fine which may extend to fifty rupees per day for every day after the first during which the breach continues.
